Graduate Architect

ANTARCTICA: ARCHITECTS are looking for a graduate architect to join our studio.

An award-winning studio working across a diverse range of projects, current work in the studio includes housing, adaptive reuse, community hub and tourism development.

We aim to foster an environment to produce high quality architecture and design work, an environment which is intellectually stimulating and builds on the collective strengths of the various individuals within it. We are looking for a candidate who will contribute actively to the life of Antarctica, its culture and its future.

The successful candidate must be able to demonstrate strong communication skills both visually and verbally with the ability to keep our team updated on your progress through discussion, participation in studio crits, regular updates on progress through various communication software applications.

You will benefit from working closely with our skilled team and must be agile to work across multiple projects and software applications. We are looking for a motivated individual who will continue to develop their professional skills with our support.

We are looking for candidates to be conversant in multiple software applications including Revit, Rhino, Adobe Creative Suite, Enscape and Microsoft Office.

Salary will be commensurate with level of experience and skill.

If you are interested in joining our team, please email a single PDF (max 10MB) your cover letter, CV, portfolio and details of your references to office@antarc.com.au
