

GUIDE TO USING THE 2024 CONSENT FORMS

Form A – Owner/Client Consent

This form is for the owner/client to complete and sign. Depending on the project, the owner of the built outcome at the time of submitting an entry to the Awards, may not be the same as original client. This form gives you consent to enter the project into the National Architecture Awards, for the owner/client's contact details to be disclosed to arrange site visits and allows project materials (ie: words, images, plans, drawings and all other materials) to be used by the Institute to promote the National Architecture Awards and Architecture generally.

Every entry must have or be accompanied by the consent of the owner. This consent may already have been given under the terms of your client-architect agreement, otherwise you might secure a consent from the owner/client using Form A.

Form B – Copyright Licence

This form should be used where copyright rights may not be clearly addressed in existing contractual arrangements, or those arrangements do not give you the required license right(s) to submit another author/creator's materials along with the entry into the Awards. This form gives you as well as the Institute permission to use and publish project materials relating to your entry (ie: words, images, plans, drawings and all other materials) as well as to promote architecture generally.

One form should be completed by each author and co-author of an "artistic work" and addresses both the copyright and moral rights of each author.

The second section of this form allows the author/creator to tell us their preferred way of identifying them, their business or their practice as the author/creator. This is important for you and for the Institute wherever we need to credit that person as the author. This is a "form of attribution" for the purposes of the moral rights obligations in the Copyright Act.

Depending on the terms of the employment agreements used in your practice, you may not need a Form B from your employees or contractors who worked on the project you are submitting. If in doubt, please seek legal advice.

To the extent that copyright permission is being given by an author/creator over a number of materials, then use Form C to list all those materials. This way, everyone is clear about the scope of the copyright license being given to you and the Institute in Form B.

Form C – Copyright Licence Schedule of Materials

This form is intended to accompany Form B, if required, and gives you or the copyright holder a place to list all the relevant project materials (ie: words, images, plans, drawings, and all other materials) which are then licensed under Form B: Copyright Licence, for the specific purposes stated in that form. This could include a photographer listing out their image files or a builder listing file names of certain plans that are to be uploaded as part of the Awards entry.
