Conservation Architect

Job Opportunity

RBA Architects and Conservation Consultants are an established and leading heritage conservation and architecture practice based in St Kilda, Victoria. Our projects encompass a vast range of buildings and places statewide, nationally and overseas. We are forward looking and technically advanced, with a team of 15 architects, conservation technicians, heritage consultants and graduates bringing together diverse skills and outlooks.

What we are looking for

We are seeking an experienced Conservation Architect (five to seven years post-graduate experience) with a passion for built heritage and contemporary architecture to join our growing team. Working alongside our director, principal and project architects, you'll lead conservation and adaptive re-use projects of varying scales ensuring excellent outcomes for the heritage assets, broader site, and our clients.

What you'll need to succeed in this role

- A passion for architecture and built heritage;
- An ability to lead and excite the project team;
- A pro-active, resourceful and self-motivated attitude;
- Responsibility to ensure project work is completed to a high standard;
- Working knowledge of best-practice conservation techniques, statutory heritage authorities (including commonwealth, state and local government authorities), relevant NCC and Australian Standards;
- Excellent verbal, graphic and written communication skills – with the ability to collaborate and liaise with clients, consultants and contractors;
- Confidence to identify and address difficult situations;
- Proficiency in AutoCAD, Revit, and Microsoft Office;
- Skills in project management including an ability to understand and track the financial and time requirements of projects;
- A willingness to positively engage with the office team and contribute to office culture

What we offer

This role is the perfect opportunity for an experienced conservation architect who is looking to engage in and advance the evolving discipline of contemporary heritage. It provides the opportunity to lead challenging projects which align with the studio vision to protect, conserve and amplify the value of built and cultural heritage.

Our office culture is supportive, diverse and friendly promoting opportunity for research and discussion of the evolving practice of heritage architecture and conservation. We are committed to flexibility for employees and seek individuals eager to make the role their own, with a long-term commitment to our practice. The role offers a broad scope for career growth with ongoing training and support.
